ning rain and threatening weather the management of the Phillies an cellent opportunity to sidestep aderity for a time. To-day a scheduled stest between the Quakers and clasts, therefore, was postponed before the fact had been definitely estabshed whether or not the late afternoon they possess such a decided advantage ret the three Eastern teams.

The Western wing of the circuit, on the whole, sizes up much stronger than this section. Within a very short time the New York title holders will be talled upon to visit each Western city for four games. It is reasonable to expect that every one of these teams will get the very best pitchers for the champions. By securing a commanding to the game to return to the Polo Grounds for willing to take a willing take willing take will be willing take rlayed against New York, both of which eveloped into routs for the Quakers, the Phillie pitchers were slugged to all parts of the lot. The Phillie chief, therefore, is hard put to it to provide such box talent as can make a reasonable showing against the pacemakers. He realizes that such a drubbing as his team suffered yesterday cannot but have the most demoralizing effect upon a combination which runs heavily to the strength of the provided that the contraction of the strength of the provided that the provided the provided that the part of the provided that the p have the most achievable the cet upon a combation which runs heavily to hereit talent. By cutting the series to three games, with the bare chance of wining the last one, to be played to-nerow, Moran avoids the possibility of the disgrace that a four-ply hammering would entail.

As a business proposition there is no deabt to-day's postponement was welcome to the management. The Phillies, without Alexander and Killifer, do not appear to be so popular as formerly. It is said, moreover, that the business management is in bad repute with the public. It is rumored that the powers have discouraged plans of the Liberty Loan tammittee as to operations at the hall park. There is little doubt that a doubleheader on the next visit of the Giants will attract for greater numbers than could possibly have been turned away to-day.

MILLER HUGGINS and Branch Rickey failed to get along together in Hug's last year in St. Louis, but the breach never reached the stage of open hostility. Through a St. Louis newspaper the Cardinal's president has something to say that will interest the new Yankee manager. The story goes in this manner:

"President Branch Rickey in discussing the Niehoff case recently made the some what startling assertion that Jack Miller, and not Miller Huggins, was the real manager of the Cardinals last season. This statement was made by Branch when it was pointed out to him that there was a belief prevalent here Niehoff would do as much for the Cardinals this season as did Miller in 1917.

'Mechanically, yes,' replied Branch, 'but in other ways I am more firmly convinced than ever that it would be a hard job to fill Miller's place. I consider Jack Miller th real manager of the Cardinals in 1917. The players have told me Jack gave most of the orders, directed team play on the field and in various other ways contributed greatly 66 CONEY" objects to our criticism of Brooklyn's baseball rooting, though we are sure we indicated clearly it was a few muckers there who are giving Ebbets Field a black eye and making it one of the most disliked parks in the country on the part of the ball players. "Coney," in turn, holds the Brooklyn management responsible for the poor show of sportsmanship over the bridge. He writes:

"In Saturday's 'Sports Trail' you have considerable to say of the lack of sportsmanship shown by Brooklyn fans, and you make it appear that Brooklyn is a place in-habited solely by roughnecks. Roughnecks there are in Brooklyn, to be sure—per-haps as many as there are in New York. But Brooklyn also has a large sport-loving public, though it is not to be found at Ebbets Field.

"A lover of sport is, more or less, a stickler for fair treatment, and the fans of Brooklyn have had so much abuse from the owners of the Brooklyn franchise that as a matter of self-respect they refuse to patronize the brooklyn franchise that as a matter of self-respect they refuse to patronize the home team.

"Some of the evils of this life (the B. R. T., for instance) cannot be avoided. But while conscription does not extend to attendance at Ebbeta Field the fair-minded sporting public of Brooklyn will go elsewhere for its baseball. As for the roughnecks, possibly they believe in an 'eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth,' and vent their abuse on the players because Charley Ebbets isn't there for them to heap their maledictions upon.

"It is immaterial to me whether or not you publish this or any part of it in your column. Most Brooklyn people who read your arraignment of our town understand the situation, and simply infer from your lines that you do not, while most Manhattan people are too busy with their own affairs to care anything about the manners of the inhabitants of Brooklyn. But simply for your own information, let me say that of the inhabitants of brooklyn have attained the height of commercial efficiency, but it cer-
